"Roanoke" one of the prettiest southern plays ever written, and from the pen of "Hal. Reid," author of Human Hearts and many others will be presented at Bell's Opera House Friday Sept. 2. The Chicago Record-Herald says of the many successful plays Hal Reid has written, Roanoke is certainly the best. Prettiest in story, brighter in situations and deeper in heart interest. There is a good vein of comedy throughout the story, which gives an agreeable shade to the more serious scenes.

Treasurer Squier will turn over the county finances next Monday to his successor, Mr. William Porter, who was elected last fall on the Republican ticket. Mr. Porter has been in the office for several weeks learning the "ropes" and spent one week in Columbus attending the County Treasurer's school under instructions from the State Auditor. Mr. Porter is a pleasant accommodating gentleman and will make a popular official. Deputy Treasurer Berg will remain with Mr. Porter for a few months.

Wilmington College opens September 13 with a good prospect for a large attendance. The past year has brought about many improvements and a considerable sum of money for the college. The gifts to the college during the thirteen months ending August 31, have amounted to something over $14,000. The faculty has been well represented in study and travel this year, making it up-to-date and efficient. The college offers two courses, with many elective in the junior and senior year. The preparatory students have the advantage of teachers who have been trained for college work. The college desires only upright, ambitious students. Moral and religious environment are good, and special care is extended to the young men and women.

BOULANGER'S HORSE DEAD.

Equine Frances to Music and Expires on Spot Where He Nearly Upset France.

A column of troops marched past the Alsace column in the Place de la Concorde in Paris the other morning with drums beating and rifles playing.

A broken-down old black horse drawing a cart heaped up with vegetables heard the music and saw the soldiers.

In the seat of the cart, half asleep in the blazing sun was Mme. Lecocq, who had been to the Paris market to buy supplies for her grocery store.

At the sound of the drums and the sight of the red-legged soldiers in the Place de la Concorde the old horse came to life. He pranced and trotted to the head of the marching column, nearly shaking Mme. Lecocq off the seat.

Half way across the square the horse stopped; his knees gave way and he fell dead. Mme. Lecocq was thrown to the ground. The soldiers marched around the wreck and laughed.

In front of the Alsace column just 17 years ago, almost to a day, this same black horse nearly upset the government of France. On that day he pranced through the Place de la Concorde carrying on his back Gen. Boulanger, then the idol of the masses, who came within an ace of being another Napoleon. They called Boulanger "the man on horseback."

The man died an exiled suicide in Brussels. The horse lived on in humble oblivion until it died on the scene of its great triumph.

NOVEL LINES OF INSURANCE

New York Underwriter Proposes to Have Policies Issued Providing Against Bad Weather.

Insurance enterprise is branching out in novel directions. One broker of New York city who has placed much surplus fire insurance with Lloyds, London, is sounding the proprietors of the beach resorts in that vicinity in regard to Sunday weather insurance. He proposes to have issued by Lloyds a policy providing a specified indemnity for loss of receipts due to weather so bad that it will keep the crowds away and thus lessen profits. There will be about ten more Sundays during the present summer resort season, and those interested in the business are said to always look to the latter end of the summer for their profits.

Another unusual line for which several prominent companies have made offers is the insurance of the wagons and horses of retail butchers and grocers. The terms offered are 2 1/2 per cent. a year on all risks, the minimum to be $400 and the amount of insurance to be paid at the end of 30 days after loss by theft if the property has not been recovered and returned to the owner. The horses and wagons will be insured only while in actual service in the delivery of goods. There are about 6,000 retail butchers and grocers in the city, and Charles Thorpe, editor of the Retail Grocers' Advocate, says they have lost within 18 months more than 300 horses and wagons of an average value of $250.

Long Business Trip.

George A. Hull, a former resident of Orange, N. J., where he was a prominent lumber merchant, has returned home after a 20-year business trip to the interior of Africa and Australia. For ten years letters were frequently received from him in Orange, but after that time no word came until three months ago, when a letter was received saying that he would probably be home some day. He was not expected to return so soon, and when he announced himself to the members of his family they were much surprised. His wife and six children are alive and there are several grandchildren. Hull is now 66 years old and in perfect health.

FLATS LACK GUEST ROOM.

New England Woman Makes Discovery That No Provision Is Made for Company.

"One of my first discoveries," said a New England woman who had been transplanted to a New York flat, according to the Sun, "was that flat dwellers made no provision for 'company' in the way that I had always supposed it must be done. Such a thing as a guest room in an ordinary flat is apparently undreamed of. This lack seemed very heathenish to me, and I insisted that one of my five rooms should be set aside as sacred to the chance guest. One day when I was expecting two very dear friends I was moved to mention my pleasant anticipation to my next neighbor, a bride of a few months. Her concern for me in what she evidently regarded as a predicament was funny.

"'Company?' she exclaimed. 'Going to stay two weeks?' What in the world will you do with them? Why do you know, we've never even let my husband's folks know about our marriage just for that very reason. I haven't any place for company—and they're just the kind that would flock to visit us—country folks, you know—Fred's people all live in Rochester."

SHARP POINT OF LETTERS.

Mail Clerk Complains of Pins Used in Epistles—Gets Many Digs During Day.

"If people must stick pins in their letters, I wish they would cover up the points so they wouldn't push through," said a mail clerk, whose hands were disfigured by tiny scratches, relates the New York Times. "I'll bet I get 100 digs a day from pins that systematic folks use to hold their correspondence together. I never could make out, anyway, why so many letters need to be finished off with a pin. Of course, I understand that about half of those written by women have a postscript in the shape of a sample of dress goods or newspaper clippings, which perhaps require a pin or two to hold them in place, but even that habit cannot account for the large number of letters that come through the post office with a pin sticking out of one corner. I have come to the conclusion that many writers so nail their manuscript with malicious intent. It may not be as fellows in the postal service against whom they hold a grudge, but we are the ones that usually get the benefit of those pins."

TRINQUET, ORIGIN OF TENNIS

Popular Game Came from Ancient Pastime Played by the Basque Peasantry.

Popular among the Basque peasantry is an ancient game known as trinet, No one knows the origin of trinet; like all Basque customs, it can be traced back and back till its history is lost in a remote past. Nearly every court in the country bears the aspect of extreme age. The court at Bayonne is believed to be 400 years old, and the one at St. Jean de Luz looks older than the one at Bayonne. When Louis XIV., who was married in St. Jean de Luz church, went down to the little frontier town to meet his Spanish bride he found the Basques of St. Jean de Luz energetically playing their ancient game; and he took the idea back with him to Paris, and from it largely modified comes the game of tennis. Tennis and trinet are very similar, save that instead of racquets a leather arrangement, known as a glove, is used for propelling the ball.

MIAMI UNIVERSITY

College, Academy and Ohio State Normal School.

EIGHTY-FIRST YEAR OPENS SEPTEMBER 20.

This old and well-known institution offers superior advantages to those seeking a thorough education under the most wholesome influences. For boys and girls just out of the grades of city and village schools, or those who have just finished the work of the country schools, the ACADEMY offers advantages equal to those afforded by the best preparatory and high schools. The recently-established STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, with its model school, its corps of skilled instructors, and all university advantages, extends facilities unpassed to those preparing to teach.

THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS with its wide range of studies, gives to those desir-
